

The Snackgraff's

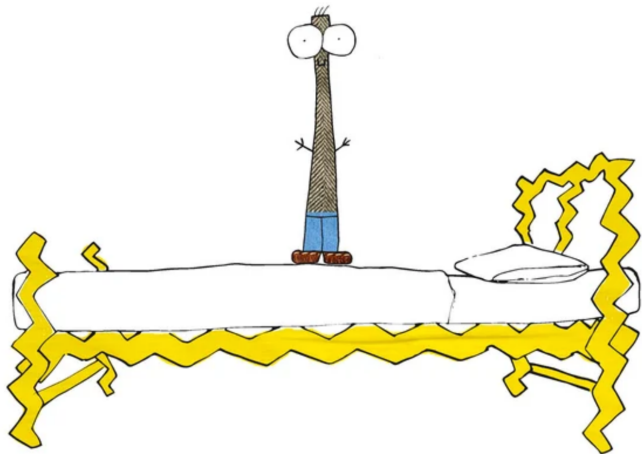

Philosophical Adventures

by

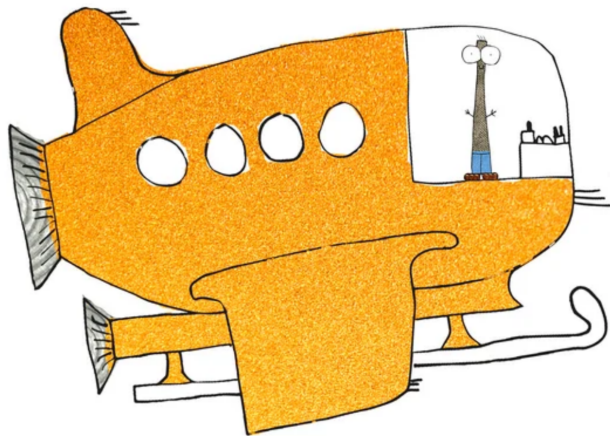

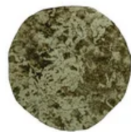

Michael R. Lucas

The Snackgraff wakes up every morning with questions on its mind

It visits friends from far away for answers it can find

If I am me, and you are you and they are always they How do we become an us and still go our own way?

Is it possible to know everything and would you want to if you could?
What would you do from day to day if every mystery's understood?

Forever is the longest time that we could ever know But if nothing's been around that long how can this be so?

Oh curious little Snackgraff we think that you will find some questions answered by books and friends and others only in time

